About Susan

Susan Norwell M.A. Special Education, has worked with a wide array of students, including those with Rett Syndrome, Autism and Multiple Disabilities for the last 39 years. She has spent the last 28 years in private practice working primarily with children on the Autism spectrum and girls who have Rett Syndrome.

Susan is a high-energy consultant who is known for her broad knowledge base as well as practical and creative ideas for furthering the learning of those with the most significant challenges.

Rett Syndrome is a complicated disorder that often baffles the most seasoned of special service providers. Understanding the core deficits is key to a girl's ultimate success; engineering the environment to support and respond to fluctuating sensory needs is paramount. Add to that the daunting task of building communication that is truly communicative and can support literacy and world learning and now we have a workshop!!

Individuals with Rett Syndrome are complicated in that their severe apraxia masks ability that is often under-estimated and untapped. Yet shining through their very real and pervasive issues is their eye-gaze that often pierces the hearts and minds of those that work with them. Come spend a fast-paced day of total immersion in Rett Syndrome: Learning and Communication Strategies. Leave with strategies for sensory supports, communication set-ups and a working literacy framework for instruction.

Come to this workshop and be inspired!
